

Using positive relationships and the EYLF to plan for and support children whose behaviour is affected by challenging life circumstances

Drawing on the expertise of professionals from the Children's Protection Society, this session aims to improve the skills and knowledge of teachers and educators working with children whose behaviour is affected by challenging life experiences and circumstances.

Looking at the educator team and strategies to support one another in a reflective planning cycle, we will explore the use of the EYLF to effectively plan for and support all children whose behaviour is affected by challenging life circumstances. The session will also unpack the importance of relationships and emotionally and physically safe environments for vulnerable children.

ABOUT THE PRESENTER

The Children's Protection Society (CPS) is a dynamic and diverse independent and voluntary child and family services organisation that holds a unique place in the history of Australian child protection. CPS provides a range of services across metropolitan Melbourne and in regional Victoria including family support, sexual abuse counselling, adolescent sex offender treatment services, fathers support services, support for grandparents raising their grandchildren, and an award winning child and family centre. All CPS training programs are sourced from the current evidence base and relevant practice wisdom. CPS ensures that its training programs are competency based and that learning outcomes are measurable via pre and post evaluations.
